

National Chemistry Poetry Winner

Cameron Sedlmeyer

Congratulations to Cameron Sedlmeyer, a second-soon-to-be-third grade student at Holy Spirit, who won first place in the K-2nd grade category of the national 2017 Chemists Celebrate Earth Day Illustrated Poem Contest. Cameron shared his interpretation of this year's National Chemistry Week theme, "Chemistry Helps Feed the World!" in the form of an original illustrated poem that can be found online at www.acs.org/cced.

He also received a cash prize of $300, a certificate, and a letter of congratulations from Michael McGinnis, Chair of the Washington, D.C. based American Chemical Society. Quite an honor! Again, congratulations Cameron!
